

ABSTRACT

Methods for treating constipation are provided. The methods include administration of peripheral opioid antagonists in combination with laxatives and/or stool softeners. Patients 5 treatable by the invention include those refractory to conventional laxative and stool softener therapy.